

Faces in the News

demo url <http://content.uclick.com/content/kw.html>

Close-up in black and white: WTO Director Michael Moore sits with a pile of coins before him, hands folded, a contemplative expression on his formidable face - just one of the FACES IN THE NEWS.

The image is worth a thousand words, and no one can put it like Kerry Waghorn. His caricatures are topical, highly detailed and skillfully drawn. The personality of his subject is always reflected in his illustration. He not only captures features, he captures character.

From political figures to sports figures to corporate bigwigs, no face is safe from the scrutiny of Waghorn's pen. He uses his illustrations to satirize his subjects. Possibly the best quality about Waghorn is his sense of balance. His style is subtle enough not to cross the line of good taste, while maintaining a high level of humor. People enjoy seeing their favorite FACES IN THE NEWS - especially when those faces bring a sense of humor to the day's top stories.

About the Creator:

Kerry Waghorn was born in Vancouver, Canada, in 1947. He is the creator of FACES IN THE NEWS, which celebrated its 20th anniversary in November of 1997. He began his career as a caricaturist with the student newspaper while attending Simon Fraser University. During the 1960s he moved his art to the underground press, syndicating a cartoon strip to a number of alternative newspapers. He eventually graduated to the city's largest daily, The Vancouver Sun, as a regular contributor.

Today, Waghorn enjoys the most extensive caricature service in the world. Waghorn's caricatures appear as a daily feature in 28 countries. His drawings are published in more than 250 major newspapers and magazines worldwide, including the Chicago Tribune, The Miami Herald, The Toronto Star, Japan Times and The Times of London.

Included among the more familiar personalities who have acquired their original caricature by Waghorn are Tom Selleck, Chevy Chase, Michael Ovitz, Bryan Adams, Billy Joel, Bruce Willis, David Bowie, Michael Eisner, Malcolm Forbes, Michael Jackson, and numerous U.S. and world political leaders. Waghorn is regularly commissioned by international companies, publications, organizations and governments.

Waghorn currently lives in an island community just outside of Vancouver. His hobbies are ocean fishing and playing dominoes.
