Want to get your hands on the funniest thing to come out of New Jersey since Frank Sinatra? Then get a grip on THE FUSCO BROTHERS!

J.C. Duffy's hilariously unique comic strip, THE FUSCO BROTHERS, features the four Fusco bachelors, Lance, Rolf, Lars and Al, along with Lance's girlfriend, Gloria, as well as Axel, the Fuscos' faithful wolverine. These wacky characters startle and delight readers with their off-the-wall antics and verbal acrobatics.

Duffy's dry wit and excellent artistry have made THE FUSCO BROTHERS into heroes. Take it from these fans:

"The Fusco Brothers are the best! Someone has obviously been taking notes on my life."

"The essence of your humor is a critique of the English language!"

Readers are excited to finally have a comic strip that takes a route through the brain in order to reach the funny bone!

About the Creator:

Duffy has four cartoon collections published by Andrews and McMeel: "Meet the Fusco Brothers!," "Newark and Reality ... Together Again," "Cruel and Unusual" and "Virtual Banality." The funniest thing to come out of New Jersey since Frank Sinatra, the Fusco Brothers have earned a loyal fan following in newspapers across America. The strip has been nationally syndicated since 1989.

In addition to creating THE FUSCO BROTHERS, Duffy produces cartoons that appear regularly in The New Yorker and other publications.
