

The Last Word in Astrology

demo url <http://content.uclick.com/content/el.html>

Eugenia Last believes that the ancient art of astrology can be considered the modern art of timing. Often considered fortune telling, astrology is rather a tool that can be used to help an individual to do the right thing at the right time. Passionate about her subject and highly motivated in her professional endeavors, Eugenia passes on knowledge and understanding to her clients and peers in a positive and uplifting manner.

About the Creator:

Born and raised in the Toronto area, Eugenia Last attended Alma College in St. Thomas and furthered her education at the Institute of Astrological Studies and Humber College. Being reared by Romanian/Ukrainian parents and a family that has a strong belief in astrology made this art particularly easy for her. She began forming a client base during her second year of college, and started to write for local newspapers in 1979 and taught adult education.

Greater recognition soon followed, and by the mid '80s, she had her own radio show and was a featured guest on numerous radio and television shows. By the late '80s, she had also published her own book. During the fall of 1994, she had the opportunity to create and write a collection of astrological reports, known as the Personalized Astro Life Package. While developing the Astro Life Package, she wrote the text for an astrological CD-ROM with one of the leading software companies in Canada. Since 1992, she has written four consecutive yearly books offering the only day-by-day horoscope guide for each of the signs, as well as a practical guide to astrology, based on her philosophy. Lecturing large corporations, organizations and educational institutions has become a major addition to her busy schedule. She has done a vast number of media appearances and is currently developing her own television show.
