About the Creator:

Kieran Meehan was born in London and moved, with his family, to Glasgow when he was 11. Following high school, he joined the art department of an advertising agency. Over the next ten years, Meehan attended evening classes in life drawing and oil painting at Glasgow School of Art, eventually becoming a self-employed painter, and holding two one-man exhibitions.

In 1985, Meehan joined a leading graphics design studio and produced cartoons on a free-lance basis for a variety of publications including "Private Eye" and "The Spectator." He also became a regular cartoonist with "Scotland on Sunday" in 1995. One hundred of his single-panel cartoons were syndicated as part of "The New Breed" feature before he started work on MEEHAN STREAK in 1997. The popular daily and Sunday strip was launched by Los Angeles Times Syndicate in 1999.
